Annual Distribution of Premiums at the Masonio Temple Yesterday.

Programme of Exercises and List of the Successful Pupils.

The usual distribution of prizes took place in Masonic temple yesterday morning, which was filled to its utmost capacity with expectant parents and friends. A most admirable programme was presented, and its execution was unequaled. The renditions of Misses Thornton, Gleason, Ellis Garrsh, and Nolan were of a high order, and the young ladies gave promise of becoming very fine performers. The solo of Miss Bird and duet of Misses Davies and Turner were very pleasing, and elicited warm applause. The four graduates gracefully received their honors, and the remaining pupils bore off handsome books and crowns. Specimens of the year's work were exhibited in the school building, corner of Teath and G streets northwest, were the power of the needle, brush, pencil, and crayon were admirably displayed, and the work in each department received unlimited commendation. Among the many beautiful articles were noticed a lovely tabernacio veil, in embroidery, by Miss Mangan, who had also a large landscape, flower piece, and cushion in water color; Misses Killegan and Bird, mag-nificent chairs, and from their brush, a large cross, landscape, mouchoir cases, and panels; Miss Gleason's two chairs were handsomely embroidered, while the Sacred Hearts and a Miss Gleason's two chairs were haudsomely embroidered, while the Sacred Hearts and a marine view spoke for her skill in water colors. There were also chairs and paintings bearing the names of Misses Kernan, Guista, Kelly, and Daly; piano stools from Misses Hannan, Stewart, Davies, and Lynn; table covers, Misses McCoy and Ferry; tidles, skirts, saques, cushions, and tapestry, Misses Brünette, Ellis, Madigan, Shean, Bryan, and Feeney. The plain sewing was neatly and tastefully represented by Misses Halloran, McGilton, Killegan, Kelley, Thornton, Castell, and Parsons. The pencil drawings of these young ladies were neatly executed, and gave promise of fine work. One of the prettiest features of the axhibit was the moss work, the picturesque scentes and the dainty moss forming charming pictures. St. Vincent's is to be congratulated on its success in maintaining the foremost ranks in our educational institutions.
